22nd Annual Hawaii Artists Recycle Trash Art Show

The Trash Art Show is an amazing show which includes a Trash Art Contest with prizes for the winners. The Trash Art show will be on exhibit from October 4th-27th. The highlight of the show, the Trash Art Fashion Show where Trash Art fashions are displayed on a fashion runway. Hundreds of people attend this opening every year, as it is really the start of the fall social season in Hilo and has been for many years.

The original "Trash Goddess," designer Robin Worley, is coming to make our Trash Art Show even bigger and better than ever. She plans on flying in from Seattle to spend ten days in Hilo creating, with the public, the most amazing haute couture fashion outfits and headdresses for our gala opening night.

Once again, Volcano artist Ira Ono is the juror and coordinator of the show. Ira is an award winning artist known for his whimsical paintings, collages, and sculptures made from found and recycled objects. He has a number of pieces in the state foundation collection and has established similar recycled art exhibits on all of the islands
